

Meeting Your Idol: Alex Crockford (II)

A Story By Soul-Controller

“Yes Alex, that’s perfect!” a photographer called out, continued to snap photos as Alex Crockford peeled off his dress shirt and revealed his shirtless torso. Despite it being waxed and thus devoid of any body hair, the man still exuded an intimidating physique as he flexed his bicep on one arm while turning his body to showcase the tribal tattoo on his other shoulder.

As the hunky fitness influencer continued to taunt the camera with his bulging muscles, his mind began to wander and think about just how incredible his life was. Understandably, Alex was still mainly in awe about the fact that he hadn’t been Alex just a few months prior. Instead, he used to be Philip, a mid-20s office worker who had the biggest crush on Crockford.

* * * * *

After one fateful day where Philip took a private class with the fitness influencer, the two men were somehow transformed into the other as they took a selfie. While Philip was able to retain memories of who he once used to be, the former Alex had seemingly lost all memories of his previous life. In fact, the man had seamlessly adopted the Philip persona as if he had been living as him for his entire life. It had been mystifying for Philip at first, forced to observe the former model adopting his same nervous tics and mannerisms. But this mystery soon turned to pure shock as he watched the man anxiously say thanks for the photo before scurrying away to begin his new and drab life of living at home with his family and dealing with petulant children every single weekday.

While the real Alex had undergone a severe downgrade, the real Philip was understandably thriving with his new life. Not only did he have the muscles he had always longed to achieve one day, but he was living a life filled with love, exorbitant wealth, and success. Despite at first being uncomfortable with attempting to fill in Alex's shoes in terms of being with his newly-wedded wife, Philip soon found himself getting more and more comfortable within the relationship as time went on. The woman, who was named Sarah, was an absolute darling for him, willing to do anything and everything he desired due to just how much she adored Alex.

Due to this, Philip was quick to give in to the woman's desire to take care of him, allowing her to service him in any way he deemed fit: a good old-fashioned muscle worshiping session where her lips grazed every inch of his manly and sweaty body, a wild and messy blowjob session where she fully showcased her thirst for him via just how far she allowed Alex's impressive manhood to forcefully travel down her throat, or even the standard of intercourse where she allowed him to fully dominate and lead her into any position he desired. Understandably, Philip too had quickly fallen for his new wife, now understanding why such a virile and still-attractive hunk would settle down at only 30 years old.

In regards to exorbitant wealth and success, Philip's infiltration of the Alex Crockford identity had seemingly helped further the man's business. With the hunky body of Alex and his own intelligent mind, the combination proved to be fruitful as Philip found the memberships for Alex's Crockfit program skyrocketed each and every month. Sure, this could mainly be attributed to "Alex's" newfound desire to share near-constant thirst traps, but Philip also viewed this as to be part of his business-savvy mind in terms of attempting to seem more approachable and ordinary via his Twitter or Instagram stories to attract those who feel shunned or out-of-place within the fitness community. With someone as gorgeous as him willing to be his wacky and nerdy self (a clear remnant of Philip's OG personality), people soon found themselves championing Alex Crockford and sharing his content with their friends and family.

With his monthly income continuing to increase exponentially, the former low-level worker had an itch starting to develop: one to leave the United Kingdom entirely and start somewhere new. Although he had always viewed Britain as his home, Philip was eager to use his new income to finally travel beyond the countrylines and explore more of Europe and the world in whole. Given the fact that Philip had shifted Alex's career to mainly revolve around the fitness program via his website (and the upcoming OnlyFans he was planning) rather than the in-person classes that had caused him to gain Alex's body in the first place, there were really no ties holding him back from leaving the country and starting somewhere new. Luckily, his doting wife was willing to go along with anything he wanted, so within a few weeks, "Alex" had moved his entire family and business to the sandy coasts of Spain.

Although there was a bit of an adjustment to adapt to Spain's culture, Philip soon found himself firmly enriching himself into the culture to the point where he was even beginning to get pretty good at his Spanish speaking! In fact, it had gotten good enough to the point where Philip was able to have a random run-in with a Spanish college student at a bar one night. While there, the two spent the night downing shots and talking about their dreams and aspirations, which led to Philip revealing his desires to further the Crockfit brand to become the biggest fitness influencer in the world and the student revealing his desires to have success as a coder. As a lightbulb went off in Philip's hunky new noggin, the two soon came up with a collaboration that would help both of them achieve their dreams: a Crockfit app.

Over the last month or so, the student had worked endlessly on the app in-between his regular college assignments while Philip figured out everything that he wanted the app to function as. Just a few weeks ago, Philip had finally received a beta version and thus looked for someone willing to test out the app for him to make sure it was operational. With a smirk on his face, Philip wasted no time reaching out to his former body and inviting the new office worker in on the opportunity to trial-run the app for what was soon to be the biggest fitness app of all time (if everything went according to Philip's plan).

Of course, the new "Philip" jumped at the opportunity to work with his biggest fitness idol (and crush), immediately downloading the link that "Alex" sent him. It didn't even take an hour before Philip could watch as the former fitness trainer began testing out whether the various programs worked for him. While this was occurring one morning, Philip spent some time catching up through the man's social media to see what the brand new "Philip" was up to.

As Philip had expected, Alex's new life was just as uneventful as it had been for him. There were various Instagram posts showcasing his muscle growth with a prominent filter slapped over the image, with the occasional post slotting in between regarding something happening in pop culture. Although Philip used to find these topics interesting, his life was far too busy practically living in the gym and working on the app to focus on trivial things such as pop music.

However, there was a small tidbit on “Philip’s” social media that left “Alex” properly shocked: the man was finally moving into his new flat! After ranting about over 14 months of attempting to get into a new flat (in which he had actually only been Philip for around 3 months), the former trainer was talking about how absolutely giddy he was to move into a place of his own since he had been stuck living with his parents during that time. Although it was certainly a big win for a man who assumed that he had always been living the life of an underappreciated office worker, Philip couldn’t help but note how amusing it was to see him so excited about the situation at hand. Just a few months prior, he had been living in a grand and lavish house; now he was just as excited to be in a flat that seemed to be the size of Alex’s former living room!

Despite a small bit of underlying guilt about stealing the life of his favorite fitness model, Philip couldn’t deny that he was living the absolute dream as Alex Crockford. It wasn’t his fault that they had swapped bodies and Alex had been forced to forget about his former life, so the new trainer found himself beginning to feel less and less guilty about the scenario at hand. In fact, as he scrolled through more of “Philip’s” posts, he felt somewhat happy for the dude. “That’s good for him I guess,” he said with a shrug, locking his phone as he went off to go enjoy the company of his wife and maybe even go for a swim along the Spanish coast..

* * * * *

Continuing the photoshoot, “Alex” began to camp up his poses, smirking a cocky smile as he flexed and even slid down the waistband of his pants to further tease his intended audience. Growing up, he had learned that sex sells, so he figured he might as well lean into it now that he has the hunkiest body possible! But not one to forget about the purpose of this entire photoshoot, Alex pulled out his phone and pulled up the brand new version of Crockfit app. His beta tests with the hunky office worker had gone swimmingly, with the app receiving nothing but praise from the person he had once been.

While his eyes attempted to remain trained on the camera, the sexy influencer couldn't help but spy a few glances to the sides of the set. Further egging him on in his attempts to serve sex AND essential fitness programs was Sarah, who was hooting and hollering to the side and talking about how gorgeous he was. From time to time, the former comic book nerd couldn't help but chuckle at how clearly in love she was with him. Her dedication to both him and their marriage was abundantly clear as she followed him everywhere he wanted her to. In fact, the way her eyes continued to size him up had even caused the man's pants begin to tent as he started imagining the passionate sex they would have as soon as they returned home. Even when the photographer picked up on his engorged manhood and attempted to stop for a moment, Alex insisted that they continued. If they couldn't photoshop the bulge out of his pants (which seemed likely given his length and girth), Alex knew that they would be the perfect outtakes to use to launch his OnlyFans!

As Philip, he was constantly looking forward to the few and far between small victories, but as Alex Crockford, every possibility was available to him... and "Alex" was planning on taking advantage of every single one!