

How to pp:

Render juicy dicks!

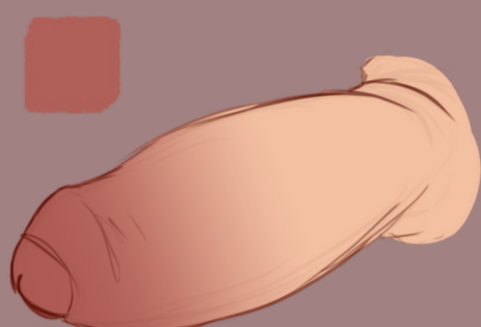

A tutorial on how I render juicy pps! Steps can be changed to better fit your style and if you do any practice using this tutorial use the #HOWTOPP I'd love to see your works!

Start with a sketch of your dick. (Use reference if needed)

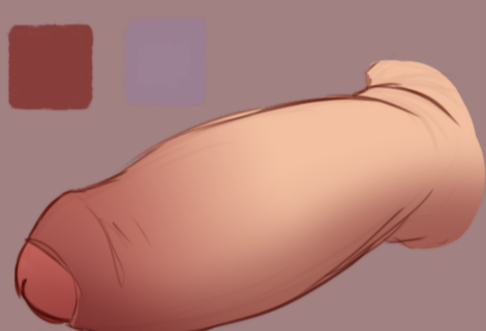

Next, add the base skin tone under the sketch and change that to a dark saturated red. (This adds warmth and colour to the dick)

Add a gradient using a red that's a little darker than your base colour.

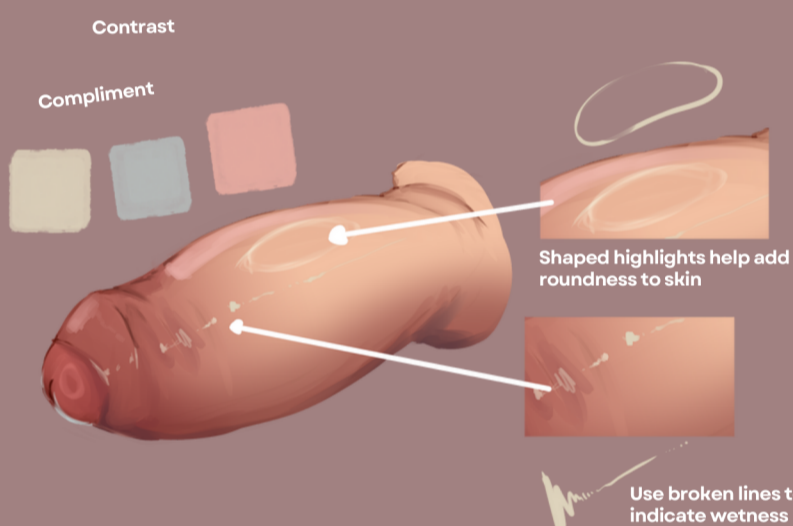

Now add a colour for the tip of your pp. Make sure its not too close to the red you used before.

Using the multiply layer, add the base shadow. A desaturated purple works well.

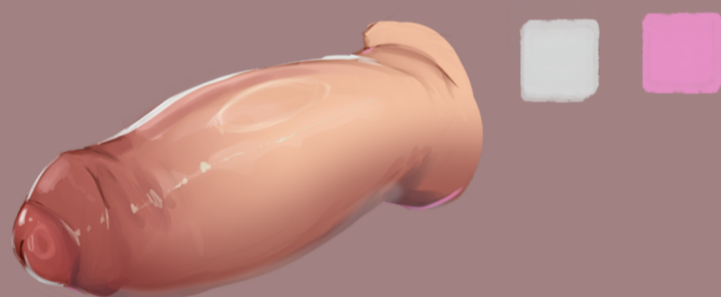

Now render your pp! It's up to you how you do this part but I like to merge the layers and blend in the outlines and add additional shadows like under the foreskin etc.

Time to add highlights. This is crucial to making the pp look juicy! You can use white for this but I like to use coloured highlights, it adds character to your pp and is a lot of fun to do. Be sure to add highlights where you want it to look wet i.e. If only the tip is juicy just add it to the tip.

To add to even more juiciness of the pp you can add opaque highlights. You can also use white to any area you think should really shine!

Final step is to add rimlights! Again I like to use colour for this but I can be done with white.

You did it! You drew a juicy dick!

These steps, tips, and tricks can be used to render dicks of any shape, sizes and colour! Remember, darker skin tones reflect more colours off of the skin so keep that in mind when rendering them.

Also works great for non human skin!

Thanks for reading!

Hope it helped