SNOWSONG

The first month of the year, named after the snows which blanket the Imperial Valley on Fey'lin during the months of deep winter. Two national holidays are placed at the beginning of Snowsong: Snowveil and New Year's Day. Snowveil is a winter celebration, traditionally marked by the giving of gifts between close friends and family, which exists between years, though is legally attached to the beginning of the year. The actual beginning of the year takes place on New Year's Day.

RAINSONG

The fourth month of the year, named after the seasonal monsoon rains which inundate the Imperial Valley on Fey'lin during this time of the year. The national holiday of Imperia takes place at the beginning of Rainsong. This is a celebration of the Fey'li Empire's foundation, and for each of the Empire's individual planets, a celebration of their joining the Empire. Fireworks and feasting are the order of the day, with Imperial blue and white themed confections being particularly popular Empire-wide.

FIRST HARVEST

The seventh month of the year, named after the first of the two annual harvest times which takes place in the lands around the Imperial Valley on Fey'lin. The national holiday of Watermaiden takes place at the beginning of First Harvest and is one of the few national holidays with religious roots. Watermaiden is dedicated to all things aquatic, from the rains and rivers which bring life, to the ponds, lakes which bring sustenance, and to the seas which bring trade. Many communities still have festivals on Watermaiden, filled with food and music and many things wet and sometimes even fishy.

CLOUDVEIL

The eleventh month of the year, named for the cloudy and wet weather seen in the Imperial Valley on Fey'lin during the late fall season. The nation holiday of Census takes place at the beginning of Cloudveil. This is the traditional day for the collection of Census data by each community in the Fey'li Empire since ancient times. In modern times the holiday serves as an election day for all local, planetary, and prefectural elected offices.

QUINTESSIAL LEAP-WEEK HOLIDAY

Celebrated only on years ending in 0 or 5, such as the years 4610 and 4615 IR. This is compensation for Fey'lin's excess of 4 days time for each orbit around it's home star, Fey'laera. The third day, Quinaes, is the traditional day when the people vote on proposed changes to the core of Imperial Law.
