

Chapter 4

MR MARCUS 5

The Machine

IVANOVICH

MR MARCUS 5

<< Chapter 4 >>

The Disguise

- Weapons? Here are weapons and ammo. - Sandro said sighing.

Sandro was cheering but he had a problem.

The collar fastened around the neck.

He knew that it emitted a location signal in addition to having a containment device by micro pores of paralyzing antidote.

Caputo just didn't use the collar's security system because of the signal interference caused by the lead paper he wrapped around the collar.

- Damn it!

Sandro said when he saw that there was no way to remove the collar

Sandro looked once more to see if he had any other suitable clothing to help with his escape, and then stopped for a moment.

Sandro had a very bold idea and so he did.

He grabbed a soldier's leotard and started to put it on.

Although the garment was difficult to put on, he managed with the help of moisturizing oils that were also in the closet; so he slipped the elastic rubber fabric over the skin.

He arranged the collar of the suit well, going under the collar and leaving it well organized, closing the zipper on the chest, hiding the artifact.

Then he got the boots and gloves.

Suddenly he heard the sound of footsteps approaching the warehouse door, they were the guards but soon someone called them to go somewhere else and they distanced themselves, giving a few more minutes.

Sandro looked into the lockers and saw more Protective Equipment and Gas Masks.

He got some kind of gas mask that had a long collar. It was perfect because it hid the collar.

Giving a few more searches he saw electric rods and gas artifacts; one caught his attention, which were electric pistols, and electric arc launchers and bombs used to contain people.

Electrical artifacts Sandro knew well; and he armed himself.

Sandro was nervous, took a deep breath over the mask and left the warehouse room.

As soon as he left, he was faced with three gimp guards.

For a few thousandths of a second Sandro stopped until he spoke:

- He was seen in the reception room.

- Shit! So what are you doing here? - replied a Gimp.
Soon the trio ran off communicating by radio, and Sandro followed right behind them in disguise.

Sandro looked around at all the details trying to understand the layout of the building, until he arrived at the reception room where he had been a few minutes before and faced with Gragory and his boys and the receptionist behind the counter.

The soldiers left the reception room, gained another corridor, which had a control barrier and a few more steps, the group was on the stairs that led to the parking lot.

It was all Sandro wanted to see.

But suddenly, the gimps were alerted.

- Code Moz... soldier? - asked a Gimp to Sandro to confirm his identification.

Sandro had no choice, he aimed the electric launcher towards the Gimp who was interrogating him.

- Code Moz? - stressed Sandro. - Fuck you.

And he shot towards a nearby electrical board that made a short circuit causing the electrical network to fall in the building in some sectors.

Sandro started throwing gas towards the gimps, but what gave the advantage was that the containment gas of ionized properties that exploding electric arc bombs, caused the devices around to damage.

Soon a gimp grabbed him, but Sandro let go of his hands and started fighting the gimps melee, with agility.

For these the gimps did not expect.

In the monitoring room, Caputo was stunned by what he saw. Some cameras were off due to power outage.

Meanwhile Sandro fought fiercely, the electric darts that the gimps threw at Sandro did not pierce his protective skin tights.

Soon Sandro threw himself out of the building, and saw the parking lot and ran desperately while shooting against the gimps.

Thus began an intense firefight of all against one.

Guards from the guardhouse ran towards Sandro; Realizing they were uniformed gimp guards, he fired a blast of stun gas bombs, causing the entire parking lot to be engulfed in smoke, and in turn the guards to fall unconscious.

Caputo's armed guards were not allowed to use lethal weapons on the condition that they would not be targeted by the same types of weapons. So the guards confined themselves to using electric weapons.

Sandro continued running and saw the electrical network and saw a power transformer.

He took his launcher and fired it into the net causing a huge electrical explosion and knocking out the power to the entire building.

Caputo's prisoners, in their prison cubes, for the first time saw something unusual.

The prison doors opened, urging some to leave but they didn't go far as long as they were in their straitjackets and feet bound, but still the prison wards turned into a hustle and bustle.

Meanwhile, Caputo was beside himself, not believing what he was seeing.

Sandro ran toward the parked cars as a group of Gimps approached.

The last assault would be carried out.

Sandro challenged Mestre Caputo's entire body of security

Continue...

