With blue eyes and a lop of red hair atop her head, none are cuter than the 21 year old Natalya Malone. The 5'4", 99lb young woman has never tried to ride her good looks through life but hasn't very much tried to work hard either. Always invested in hobbies, books and shows, Nat was a jack of all trades before she graduated high school, which she barely did.

Since then, the young woman has had a bad case of wanderlust, never tied down to a job or education track for more than months at a time. This would have become a major problem had she not finally found the missing puzzle piece in her life. Now understood and cared for by a responsible, respectable other, Natalya can continue giving her all to her hobbies and whimsical interests while having a roof over her head and a familiar face to greet at home.

We find this protagonist content with the status quo, happily uncommitted and carefree to anything except her partner. Their bond is the constant in her life, a lucky match that found someone able to keep up with Natalya in some regards while willing to clean up her figurative mess in others.

The sharp dressed young man pictured here hasn't had it easy, bullied and teased throughout school while being a hard worker dedicated to stability. You wouldn't think having large glasses would cause so much trouble, but when everyone stares and no one takes you seriously, it leads to detrimental reclusion and depression.

Jeremy Davenport was lucky enough to meet his other half in his final year of high school. Having just transferred, again, to a new community thanks to his parent's occupations, Jeremy had begun to see the same habits forming in his colleagues. There was one girl honestly interested in Jeremy, and not for the large glasses on his face either. The young man was intelligent, kind and worked hard. Tutoring the young woman to help her receive a diploma, as well as going steady in the process, Jeremy's life turned around that year and has been loving every day since.

We find this protagonist content with the status quo, happily living with his partner and caring for her in many ways. Having someone dependent on Jeremy gives purpose and meaning to the work ethic he exercises, savoring the moments he spends with her and the enrichment her creative mind can bring him.
