

Costume Party Preparations

Slypher hummed to himself as he walked through the main entrance, the soulfire phoenix looking around as he watched those that he had hired to set up the music and food for his Halloween party. It was always one of his more favorite times of the year since he could get up to all sorts of mischief without anyone even realizing it. In this case he decided that he was going to do a bit of a costume party for a world that had quite a number of humans and there were quite a few that were paying a premium for the experience he had offered. But there was one slight problem as Slypher realized that he was already running very far behind and things have just gotten started.

Fortunately Slypher was nothing if not resourceful as he looked at the ones that were setting everything up. While most of them were people that were there specifically for things like catering and DJ there were others that he had hired for far different reasons. They didn't know this, naturally, but they had all unknowingly agreed to help not only with other things but also providing for the costumes as well. As the soulfire phoenix looked around he could see that there were already a few people noticing that they were overbooked and he needed to take care of them right away.

To start Slypher went to where the stage was being set up for the party, and as the one that he had actually hired was already mostly set up there were two others that sat there in slight confusion. Kosjir was the lizard that was supposed to be the DJ with the synth lion that was next to him as his sound engineer. When the two were looking around they noticed the black-feathered creature heading towards them and recognized them as the coordinator for the event. Before the two had a chance to say anything the phoenix brought up his hands in order to keep them from asking before he began to speak.

"I am so sorry you guys," Slypher said as he stood in front of the two. "When I hired you I didn't realize that the party planner had someone that they always bring on board whenever someone wanted a DJ. Since they're already set up and in an effort to not make waves I'll have to send you guys home, but I will definitely be paying you for the inconvenience of this double booking."

Though the two were a bit shock to hear that they weren't going to be playing tonight they were at least grateful that the coordinator seemed to recognize their mistake and was going to pay them. Slypher guided them away from the hall and towards a different smaller area, one that was set up to be some sort of green room or lounge for the entertainment while the avian creature apologized once more. "Hey, don't worry about it," Dieter said with a sheepish grin as Kosjir went over to where Slypher told him to come over to get his information down. "These things happen."

As Kosjir and Dieter waited for the phoenix to cut them a check and pay them the lizard started to huff, Kosjir starting to feel warm as Dieter also started to sense the temperature rising. The two of them had just been focused on getting their equipment ready to go and with that motivation no longer available there was something else that had started to filter into his mind. It was a feeling of warmth that had begun to radiate through both of them and when they asked the phoenix they just smirked and motioned to their body before staying temperature differences weren't a big deal to him. He did mention that the air conditioning for this room was broken and if they wanted to get more comfortable while they waited for them to finish up.

Though normally they wouldn't even think about it they found the presence of the phoenix to be oddly comforting enough for them to do so. While Dieter didn't really need clothing being a synth they still had a pair of shorts and a shirt on for modesty, and as they took it off they began to feel even more strange. It wasn't just the heat anymore, as Kosjir started to get his own pants off he noticed that Dieter was starting to pant heavily despite not needing to after finishing up getting completely naked. Though he was still in his underwear the feeling of his bare scales in the air felt good but... somehow still confining.

Slypher went away from what they had been pretending to do and could sense that their plan was already starting to work, snapping their fingers and allowing his own clothes to disappear and expose his masculine body. Though both were already starting to show signs of his corruption he could tell that the lion synth was particularly weak willed... or perhaps just very into what was happening to them as a bulge formed in the metal of his groin. The luster of their skin was also starting to shift slightly and as Kosjir could also see that something was happening to his belly scales the phoenix came over and stroked down Dieter's mane.

"You know, as much as I'm sure you're enjoying yourself I think it's time that you two stop playing around," Slypher said as he focused his attention mostly on the synth, seeing his eyes starting to shift in their glow as Kosjir looked at him in confusion. "Although if you want to play around like that I'm sure we got a few minutes before I put you back to work."

"Put us back to work?" Dieter asked, though as Kosjir shook his head he could tell that Dieter even sounded different, a bit deeper and a little more sultry. It almost sounded like... the phoenix, though at the moment he found that his focus was more on the two in front of him as Slypher groped the groin of the one in front of him. "What do you... mean..."

Slypher could already feel the corruption in this one growing strong enough to push to the next part of his plan, and as he glanced over at the confused reptile he knew that it would be quite the show for him too before during back to the one in front of him. "While I appreciate you testing out those costumes for me we have a lot of work ahead of us," As the lion synth continued to look at Slypher in slight confusion the other man just grinned and as those glowing claws pushed against the metal they actually began to sink into some sort of seam that had appeared above the bulge. "Let's see about you getting out of this..."

Though Kosjir was still confused at what was going on his eyes widened when he saw that Dieter's head had tilted up and a pleased look was on their face while something began to emerge from their groin. At first he thought it was just their cock, unsure of how synths worked, but when he looked down he saw that the thick cock that had emerged was a glowing cyan blue. The throbbing shaft wasn't pushing out of any slit that Dieter had for it to push out, it looked like it was coming out of their stomach as Slypher slowly pulled his fingers up on the seam he had found in the metal. As Kosjir watched he was shocked to see that as the phoenix slid one hand up and down the newly emerged shaft the other had gotten all the way up to his chest where black feathers began to push their way out.

"Oh... that feels... very strange," Dieter said, though once more their voice continued to be altered to the point where it no longer sounded like them, groaning loudly as the hand that had split the metal, which looked more like rubber, managed to somehow slide in and push out their chest. "I'm... Dieter... right? That doesn't seem right though."

"It certainly sounds like someone was really getting into character," Slypher said with a chuckle, continuing to stroke the glowing shaft as he pushed the transformed metal off of Dieter... or at least the creature that had been Dieter. "It's time for you to ditch the costume..." As Kosjir could feel something happening inside of him, his body beginning to bulge and swell unnaturally, he could only watch while pleasure radiated through his body as the feathered chest underneath the stretching metal become more pronounced. Slypher continued to stroke faster and as the phoenix got the creature close to climax while their back arched he pulled away his hand and finally grabbed the lion synth by the mane before pulling it away.

The seam of what Slypher had called a costume pulled away completely and Kosjir let out a gasp as he saw the head of the soulfire phoenix emerge from the lion's head, which had collapsed into a hood and mask that was connected to the rest of his deflating body. From the way his new beak opened in pure pleasure the lizard man could see his entire body trembling in what had to be an orgasm. It was something that was causing his own body to tremble in desire and without even realizing it he had started to stroke down his own member, though when he held his throbbing shaft he realized that it was... bigger than normal. As he became more aware of it with each time he slid his hands up and down it started to feel like his cock was actually a sleeve for one that was inside, which was matching his back muscles that were becoming very swollen while his head began to bulge and stretch slightly.

When Kosjir looked back up he let out a slight gasp as he saw the head of the second Slypher become completely exposed, the arms of the synth lion drooping down like loose-fitting sleeves after the costume had been pulled down from his shoulders. The avian underneath looked a bit confused at himself before his cyan eyes started to glow more brightly. It was like an epiphany had dawned on them and by the time what had become of the costume the two beaks had met into a fierce and passionate kiss. The lizard man was shocked to see the identical soulfire phoenix still making out for a while before he let out a groan, which prompted the two to look over at him.

As the lizard swallowed hard at seeing the predatory look in their eyes he continued to feel very strange, and as he held up his hands he saw that something was happening to his fingers. The tips glowed with cyan and as he continued to feel like something was going on inside of him there was something else happening to him, his hands going up to his head as he began to feel errant thoughts in his mind. It was like there was someone else whispering in his head and as his eyes began to tint with cyan the two came up and started to rub against his body. The scales of his form shifted unnaturally like he was wearing them as a suit... just like what happened with Dieter as the two Slypher's also started to whisper how good it felt to be a phoenix and to take off that silly lizard costume.

The reptilian DJ just let out a gasp as Slypher came up to him, but as his cock throbbed the second one came up behind him as the first rubbed against his open jaw. As he did things began to feel strange for his maw, like there was something else that was inside of his mouth, but it was hard to even think about anything other than the pleasure that was coursing through his mind. While he locked eyes with the phoenix in front of him the other one rubbed against his chest and abs, which only served to cause the scales to slide around against whatever was underneath of it. It was like his scales were some sort of suit, no, a costume... and as the creature's eyes completely rolled back into his head Slypher pushed the scaly lips back to reveal the shiny black beak underneath.

It didn't take much for the new phoenix to emerge, the creature that had been Kosjir becoming nothing more than a suit as the thought processes of Slypher subsumed his mind. It burned away the former creature's psyche and imprinted it only on the suit as the mouth of the lizard eventually was pushed over his head and down onto his feathered neck. "Oh, I suppose we should be getting ready for the party," the new Slypher said as the thoughts from the other two quickly corrupted his mind. "We're going to need a few more costumes for the VIP's though... if I remember correctly the catering crews should be coming in at this point..."

As the preparations continued there were more people coming in to make sure that everything was ready for a night of fun and frivolity; though there were those that were responsible for the finishing touches that began to notice something strange. As Night helped his fellow decorator Darey moving a large ice statue next to the catering table the wusky had noticed that there were far less people doing the cooking than there had been before. While the tiger snake next to him had mentioned that the number of chefs and servers for a party like this was considered overkill it didn't stop them from starting to work, though more often than not there was someone starting to arrange food before being pulled aside by the black and cyan phoenix that was running the party. By the time they had gotten started with final preparations, they had found there had to be at least half a dozen people who were no longer around, and while they were more focused on their work, it did seem like they were seeing the soulfire phoenix more often.

The fact there also seemed to be more than enough staff doing the decorations was also not lost on the two of them either. They were getting things done quickly and just as they finished with the ice sculpture they found themselves looking right at the soulfire phoenix. "It appears that we have overbooked our decorating crew a bit," Slypher said with a slight smirk on his beak. "However since it's so close to the time of the party and you were doing so well though we would like to make sure that you are adequately compensated with giving you a new position."

"A new position?" Darey asked, the phoenix nodding at her as she perked up. "Perhaps... with slightly higher pay?"

"Quite a few benefits," Slypher replied. "We have a new orientation that you should follow me to."

Though Darey and Night looked at one another they just shrugged and decided that they would at least entertain the offer as they followed the phoenix back towards the green room. As they did Night found himself turning his head as something glowing caught his eye, his jaw dropping slightly when he noticed that there was a cyan glow over there. It was another phoenix that looked exactly like the one that was leading them to the green room but before he could see it clearly they had ducked into the kitchen. At first he thought it was perhaps something that might have been a trick of the light except that he seemed to see it again near the DJ booth.

The scene of the party disappeared behind them as they made their way into the green room, the two decorators being led into the new area. When they got inside they noticed that they weren't the only ones that were in there; they saw a cat that had been introduced as Axel and a greywolf-dragon hybrid called Vritrax, and a foxjay introduced as Steel, all of whom were sitting on the couch waiting. There was also something else there that was a bit unusual in the form of a bunch of suits that were stacked up near the table, over a dozen from the look of it before the phoenix got their attention once more. Slypher motioned for the other two to get up as well and as they stood there he seemed to be sizing them up before nodding his head.

As the cyan eyes darted from each creature all five of them began to stiffen, Darey and Axel letting out soft gasps while the other two trembled upon the watchful gaze of the avian creature. Slypher finished his examination and gave a small nod of his head, and as he did they began to feel the presence of others that were in the room with them. With a snap of the fingers of the phoenix the five were no longer frozen and as they looked back all of them turned their heads to see that the glowing that had become more radiant with every second came from other soulfire phoenixes that were entering into the room. They were all identical and with each one that walked past them the power of Slypher's corruption rose to the point where he didn't even need to say anything for them to start taking off their clothing while the males of the group were already sporting erections.

"while I'm sure my helpers here would be more than happy to slip your costumes off themselves," Slypher said as everyone in the group before him began to pant while continuing to bare themselves to the identical phoenix. "I think that given the nature of your eagerness it will be easier and more efficient if you all removed the costumes from each other. Of course we're not in too much of a rush, so feel free to enjoy yourselves while you release your inner phoenix."

The five that were in the room had become too enthralled by the corruptive power of the creatures that stood around them to really listen to Slypher anymore, a cyan glow starting to shine in their eyes as they began to look at each other. With the party getting closer the soulfire phoenix had opted to do bigger batches in order to make more costumes and the four that they had had chosen were more than eager to fulfill what was needed. Once the last of their clothing had hit the floor they began to rub and caress one another, Darey letting out a hiss as Axel came up to her and began to rub against her breasts. As the cat pleased the tiger snake the greywolf-dragon came up behind her and began to also caress her scaly shoulders, their erections poking against the one between them.

As Night watched his decorating partner getting fondled by the two men he suddenly felt a pair of hands press against his own stomach, the foxjay that had been behind him nuzzling against his ear and causing the wusky to pant heavily. When he looked back he could see that the power of the phoenix had already saturated the other man to the point where he could see something pushing out of his maleness, a second glowing cyan cock sliding out from the tip of his first one that was wrapped around it like a sheath. Whatever was happening to him also had started to heavily effect the snake between the two men, the tone of her voice shifting slightly as her chest swelled under the fingers of the cat squeezing them.

The lust that was growing between the five was becoming palpable as they were quickly discovering their inner phoenix; all of them had started to get affected the second they were in the green room with Slypher, and with the others that had come before them watching it wouldn't take long. They could already see everyone in the group moving from the simple groping and nuzzling that they were doing to more intimate acts; the wusky was moved over to the couch by the more dominant and already partially avian foxjay as he put that bigger cock to work sliding it between the cheeks of the other man. For the three that had paired off Axel wasted no time in guiding his own tip into the pussy of the tiger snake while the hybrid behind her had already started to push between those scaly cheeks as the pleasure shared between them rose. As they started to get into it Slypher nodded to the others and dismissed them since their work in transforming the five was already complete, it just hadn't shown quite yet as he could see something pushing out of the snake's serpentine muzzle.

With the influx of pleasure being directed to the woman between them Darey's mind and body had completely succumbed before the other two, the blunt snout starting to stretch around the beak that was pushing out of her maw while her head tilted back. For a few brief moments her eyes had widened in shock but as the cocks inside her pussy and tailhole thrust deeper into her body it was causing her entire head to start to slide back. Her gasps were still quite audible though and the two that were plowing into her gripped forward they had started to gain definition in their own bodies, the shapes becoming something more avian even without Slypher's actual form emerging quite yet. Unlike Darey that was becoming a full suit with her identity the other two were becoming more modular; the cat's feet had fallen from of the avian ones that had pushed them off while Vritrax saw his own mitts sliding away from his forearms to reveal black feathered arms underneath while he continued to push his hips forward.

A similar transformation was happening to the foxjay and wusky as Steel had pushed the other man into the cushions and had already mounted him. Much like the arms and feet of the two men Steel found his wings drooping a bit before the bright blue and white feathers sloughed off into a wing sleeve to reveal the black and cyan tipped ones underneath. A familiar smirk had already formed on the foxjay's face and as he slid his new cock into the tailhole of the wusky beneath him, which had also started to glow while yielding easily, Night's face went from a look of pure submissive pleasure to a similar grin that was shared between them. With Night awash in pure pleasure he hadn't even realized that his thoughts had shifted, finding the need to consume souls and engage in deviant desires as their mind was corrupted by the machinations of the phoenix infiltrating his psyche.

All five had recognized that they were no longer thinking like themselves and just as Slypher had predicted they were just fine with their new mindsets, the female Slypher emerging from Darey as the snake's body had shed from her upper form like a real snake shedding skin. The other two that were continuing to stroke her scales and feathers looked like they had on shirts and pants that resembled their own forms, Vritrax taking off the hood his eastern dragon head had become by the horn and tossing it aside while relishing in his new avian form. When the phoenix formerly known as Axel had to pause from sliding in and out of the pussy of the one in front of him, exchanging the folds of the snake for an avian snatch, he took the time to shed his legs as well so that he was a phoenix from the waist down while the glow of his cock was dampened by sliding deeper into the pussy of the other Slypher.

For Steel and Night the foxjay on top had embraced the corruption to the point where he merely slipped off both top and bottom of his vulpine form while still managing to spread open the inner walls of the wusky beneath him. With the canine pinned down by what was essentially his own body the trapped phoenix panted heavily as the form of the wusky became distorted. With the avian creature growing within and no way to get off the costume that had formed the grey and white skin was starting to grow more muscular and his back stretched with the wings that were growing underneath. As he could start to feel the canine muzzle begin to get stretched from the beak underneath the new Slypher that had been Night looked up to see the one watching over them standing there with a smug grin on his face and his cock in his hand.

"This is fun," Slypher commented as he took his hands and secured them around the growing muzzle. "While we have to get ready for the party pretty soon I don't think you'll mind a little experimentation, right?"

"I certainly wouldn't mind," the former foxjay said with a familiar grin on his face.

"Ah, taking advantage of my position," the Slypher pinned beneath himself said, the voice of the phoenix coming out of the canine muzzle that was becoming more beak-shaped by the second. "I suppose I can't-"

The Slypher standing there didn't let his counterpart finish as he took his shaft and shoved it into both muzzles, feeling a slight suction from the still protruding canine one before the tip pushed into the real one that was inside of it. With the corruption and power flowing through the room it was easy for him to stretch out the maw of the other man as he could see his fingertips pushing out the glove-like fur that his hands and feet had become. As the real Slypher began to match the rhythm of the one on top of the creature, which was rather easy to do since they were identical in every way, he glanced over to see how the others were doing. Just like with Steel the other three had completely taken off their costumes and revealed the phoenix that was within them, the group shifting so that the female one was on top of the former hybrid grinding on his groin while the other stuffed her new beak with his own glowing cock.

Slypher continued to hump into the throat of the stretched out wusky, which looked like him wearing an ill-fitting bodysuit by that point, and then told the others they had a few minutes before they got to get ready. The other Slyphers acknowledged him and with their former identities locked in the suits that they had so casually discarded they all knew what they had to do. The first guests would be arriving soon... and with all these costumes and phoeni to help him it was sure to be a very eventful costume party.