

done!!!

The perspective is a little weird looking at it after. But I'm not going to change up the forest anymore than I already did.

The forest looks a lot better than a lot!

The main focus really is the mountains so I'm glad the focus goes there at least. And the trees are detailed enough that the little shift in perspective shouldn't be a problem.

It was really nice to work traditionally with something like this! I had to work with the color theory that I knew rather than relying on the computer to work it out for me.

It was a fun thing to work on, but I'm not going to attempt another scene like this again unless I know what I'm doing.

I enjoy the colors! Not so much the trees.

thank you for your time!