

Caelus, aka “Trailblazer” is an inquisitive literal trash panda who will dumpster dive on a whim and try anything anyone tells him to drink or eat, canonically chugging experimental drinks in one go. He also, canonically, gets REALLY gassy. There's that glorious scene with Boss Du where he drinks one of his teas, which leaves Caelus burping uncontrollably where every single response is just him burping again and again, sometimes in between sentences, other times, just letting several out back to back. And once the actual scene ends and the player is free to wander around, Caelus is still burping nonstop for several more seconds before his stomach finally settles down.

So, given that he let out a few dozen burps back to back (sadly, all text), it's 100% canon that Caelus gets insanely burpy. Granted, in that instance, the tea, according to Du, had “too much gas” in it. Still, even without that, between how fast Caelus chugs drinks down, how shameless he is in doing literally anything, and the fact that he's not exactly a normal being, it stems to reason that Caelus is the type to just let them fly without any shame or self awareness.

Caelus is the type who, anytime he needs to burp, he's just going to smack his chest and knock loose a thick belch or two, then just sigh and carry on like nothing. He's not ashamed because he's perfectly okay with just reacting to how his body is feeling any given moment. If he's gotta burp, he's gonna burp. And because it feels so much better to let it out freely than hold it in, he'll do the former every time, no matter the setting. It's gotten him in a lot of trouble on several occasions, and he still doesn't get why, no matter how many times he's told it's rude. His only response is a simple, “...But my stomach was bothering me...” with a blank, slightly confused face.

Usually when he drinks something, a lot of the time, he'll chug it down as much as he can in one go, and after downing his drink, grab his stomach and force up a lengthy belch, then sigh and pat his belly in satisfaction before commenting on the drink. Around guys like Luka, that can spark an impromptu burping contest, much to Dan Heng or Gepard's chagrin, but Caelus will always engage, because he does think trying to force up louder burps is fun.

Caelus' burps are pretty decent, but they don't tend to get really loud or long. It's more that he gets gassy pretty easily and when he does, several burps just roll out of him one after the other. Sometimes, gas will get stuck in his stomach, and he'll thump his gut a few times and gulp down some air, until a really long, relieving belch just rolls out for several seconds, and ends with him moaning in relief. His loudest burps occur when he's immensely stuffed. Caelus is a pretty ravenous eater after all, so when he's hungry, he tends to scarf down several dishes as fast as he can. And when he's feeling bloated and heavy, leaning back and rubbing his bulging belly, that's when he gets his loudest burps. These are the big, rumbling belches that erupt deep from his stomach, and usually leave him groaning and rubbing his belly. Others will scold him but he'll just stroke his belly, mumbling that he kinda wants dessert.